الحل والشرح

1 D) grinds The book says 'my sister used to grind her teeth when she was asleep', and lists grind with the other body-habit verbs (flick, shrug, twirl). So the child grinds his teeth in his sleep.

2 C) You don't have to press the button of the elevator more than once. "It is not necessary" means lack of necessity, which the book expresses with don't have to. Mustn't means prohibition and shouldn't means advice, so they change the meaning.

3 C) tried 'He would reach his goals' is the Second Conditional, for an unlikely or imaginary situation in the present or future: if + past simple, would + verb. So the if-clause takes 'tried'.

4 B) name the resources which can improve our outlook. The paragraph lists what is available to us: websites with surveys, questionnaires and tips, and even school mindfulness classes. The writer names resources that can improve our outlook.

5 B) interpret To interpret means to translate speech from one language to another, which suits someone fluent in several languages. Inherit, inoculate and intern have different meanings.

6 C) artificial 'Drinks and food' needs an adjective in front of it: 'artificial'. 'Artificially' is an adverb and the others are nouns.

7 C) It is expected that more phones will be owned in the future. The book gives the structure 'It + passive form of reporting verb + that' for what people generally think. 'Experts expect' becomes 'It is expected that', and the clause keeps 'will be owned'.

8 A) It is thought that shopping will always be a social experience. The book gives the structure 'It + passive form of reporting verb + that' for what people generally think. 'People think' becomes 'It is thought that', and the clause keeps 'will always be'.

9 C) An Italian scientist was claimed to have discovered the formula, but actually it was a German. To show the discovery happened before the claim, the book uses a perfect infinitive: 'An Italian scientist was claimed to have discovered the formula'. A simple infinitive would not show the earlier time.

10 C) to bring my passport with me. The book gives the pattern verb + object + (not) to infinitive, as in 'encouraged me to buy'. So 'reminded me to bring my passport'. The reminder is to do it, so 'not to bring' is wrong.

11 C) has been proved / dehydration The book's pattern is It + passive form of reporting verb + that, as in 'It has been announced that there is an outbreak...'. So 'It has been proved that' is the passive reporting form; 'had proved' and 'has proved' are active, and the other options with 'had been proved' carry a misspelled noun. Only option C also spells dehydration correctly.

12 C) Muna said that they were having a traditional dinner with their parents that evening. Reporting moves the verb one tense back (are having becomes were having), changes pronouns (we/our become they/their), and this evening becomes that evening.

13 A) People believe that Science fiction stories about talking animals are true. The book's "It is believed that nature sounds help you relax" shows the active version keeps the present tense: People believe that stories ... are true. Changing to believed or were true would shift the time.

14 D) Khalid asked us why we were leaving early. A reported question becomes a statement (no question word order), with the verb one tense back: why are you leaving becomes why we were leaving.

15 C) for The book's pattern is verb + preposition + gerund, with "apologised for not having cleaned". So the students apologised for not listening.

16 B) is estimated The book reports general beliefs with It + passive reporting verb + that, as in "It is believed that ...". So "it is estimated that" is correct; the active forms need a subject.

17 C) The place where Rashed hid the iPad was under the mattress. The underlined words name a place (under the mattress), so the cleft starts with the book's "The place where": "The place where Rashed hid the iPad was under the mattress".

18 C) Tala said that her friends had been living in Aqaba the year before. In reported speech the verb moves one tense back (were living becomes had been living), the pronoun changes to match the speaker (my becomes her), and "last year" becomes "the year before". Only option C does all three.

19 B) past habits that have now changed. 'Used to' describes past habits that are no longer true. The sentence says she bought clothes before, but now chooses her own.

20 B) It was yesterday that Rashed invited Dana to the party A cleft sentence puts the information to emphasise right after 'It was'. The underlined word is 'yesterday', so the sentence is 'It was yesterday that Rashed invited Dana ...'. The other options emphasise Rashed, the party or Dana.

21 A) an intriguing The article tip says to give the article a title that interests the reader, and 'intriguing' fits that aim. Complex, long and boring would not interest the reader.

22 A) immerse The sentence uses "love to go ... and immerse", so the second verb is the base form after to, as in the book's "completely immerse yourself in natural surroundings".
